Los Angeles Southwest College to host free Transfer/Career Fair on Oct. 29
Fair at the Lakin Center will be open to students as well as community members

Los Angeles Southwest College will host several top universities and employers in the area at its annual free Transfer/Career Fair from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Oct. 29 in the Lakin Center gymnasium.

Higher education institutions that will have representatives prepared to answer questions will include University of California, Berkeley, University of Southern California and the University of California, Los Angeles. Employers at this year's fair will include a diverse group, including the State Board of Equalization, State Farm and VA Greater Los Angeles Healthcare System. Last year's fair resulted in several job offers being extended by employers such as FedEx, UPS and Child Care Careers.

"One thing that the community needs to know is that we will have employers who are hiring," LASC Career Center Director Joyce Ashley, who is co-organizing the fair with Transfer Center Counselor Lisa Ford.

The fair is open to LASC students as well as community members and they are encouraged to dress professionally and have plenty of resumes to hand out. If those who are interested need help with their resumes, want to receive interview tips or have career questions, they are welcome to stop by the Career Center in the School of Career and Technical Education building on the LASC campus. For more information, call the Career Center at 323-242-5527 or the Transfer Center at 323-241-5200.
